Not only does passionate education entrepreneur Kenya Brooks have a wealth of question is whether or not it is possible for the students to have equal access to quality education during this time of the pandemic. And more specifically, will the academic needs experience in the education field, but she desires to offer a long term solution for all students during this time of the pandemic. She believes that through groundbreaking learning platforms that ensure access to equal and quality education, students will be able to thrive, even while learning remotely. It seems that with brilliant minds like that of Kenya Brooks there is still hope to find a way to adapt and adjust to this shift in education. She encourages that there is still a way to offer a near-seamless learning experience to students during the pandemic. Thus, the proverbial light is no longer at the end of the tunnel but in the midst of the tunnel. And, oh what a joy and relief to parents, educators, and students! Kenya Brooks has worked with different government entities and educational organizations.
